

W. 4TH PAVING PROJECT HITS COUNCIL SNAG

City Holds Up Money When It Learns State Changes Plan And Will Use WPA.

WANTS FIGURES CLEARED

Miller Says City Should Get Benefit From Revised Plan; Members Back Him.

Resurfacing of West Fourth street was temporarily snagged today by city council action questioning state charges against the city for paving costs.

Four pieces of legislation which would have authorized the state to proceed with the work were tabled last night after Fred Miller, chairman of council's finance committee, took issue with the cost of the project.

Miller's motion to delay the measures until estimates on the job were submitted to council won unanimous backing.

Miller questioned the cost of the project when a bill was submitted appropriating $48,000 as the city and property owner's share of the improvement.

"The original estimate on the project figured on a contract basis and without WPA labor was $96,000," Miller asserted. "Since then the state has figured on WPA labor and we are still being held up for $48,000."

"Our agreement was that it should pay half of the cost. It is not a 50-50 proposition if WPA labor is to be used and the city is not to receive some of the benefits," he added.

Tells of Extension.
City Engineer W. C. Statter told council that the project originally called for improvements from North Main street to a point near Audsale avenue. This plan, he said, has since been extended to include East Fourth street to North Diamond street.

He said he had been told the entire job would cost about $125,000 under contract but with the state using WPA labor, the state was able to keep the city's cost within the original estimate.

Miller demanded that estimates be obtained and presented to council "to protect the city's interests."

With the ordinance tabled, three other measures dealing with the project were shelved without comment.

City officials predicted that the financial snag will not cause any delay in getting acting paving work started after placing new water lines, now in process, is complete.

HALF FINISHED

Clean Up Crews Haul 90 Tons of Rubbish to City Dumps.

The city's annual spring clean-up and fire prevention campaign, sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the Junior Association of Commerce, moved along at a quickened pace today as city work crews hit the half way mark in their day to day collection of refuse.

With approximately 90 tons of rubbish already hauled to the city dump, cleanup crews under the direction of Lester Linham, garbage disposal superintendent, were scheduled to finish the Third Ward today.

Tomorrow the four trucks will move into the Fourth Ward to gather rubbish placed at the curbs by property owners. Friday they will tackle the Fifth Ward and on Saturday they are scheduled to complete the job in the Sixth Ward.

Professor Slain as He Reads Book

Pure Food Authority in Massachusetts Killed By Mystery Caller.

(By International News Service)
WESTFIELD, Mass.—The death of Lewis E. Allyn, 66, professor of chemistry at Westfield State Teachers' college and nationally known pure food expert, who was fatally shot while reading a mystery book entitled "The Gun" in his living room, gave police a weird murder mystery today.

Allyn was shot in the head and mouth, Mrs. Allyn, who discovered the tragedy could offer no motive for the crime.

Police Chief Allen Smith said several .22 calibre pistol shells were found inside the house near the front door. He theorized that no struggle had taken place. He assumed that the professor, who was dressed in his lounging clothes, had set down his book and walked toward the hallway, possibly in response to a knock at the door, when he was shot.

The case paralleled the unsolved slaying of Dr. Elliot Speer, headmaster at Mt. Herman school, Northfield, who was shot while reading in the study of his home Sept. 14, 1934, by a killer who fired through the window.

A poll of the professor's friends and relatives for a motive proved unsuccessful though neighbors said Allyn was suspicious of visitors. They said he lived almost as a recluse and never asked people to call at his home except on official business.

Allyn first attracted national attention when he joined the Westfield staff in 1903. His method of teaching chemistry was considered radical at that time.

It was during this time he became interested in conducting experiments in removing various extracts from pure foods.

The professor was exonerated in a state senate investigation of his connection with commercial activities.

Westfield became known as the "pure food city" in the 1906-1919 era when Allyn was a member of the board of health. The reputation was acquired because regulations for the manufacture and sale of food which he inspired.

Baruch and Gerard Join Cry For Sea Defense; Fleet Held Near Hawaii.

WASHINGTON—New demands that congress build up United States defenses coincided today with a surprise announcement that the battle fleet would remain in mid-Pacific.

The news that the fleet would stay in the Hawaiian area would be returning on schedule to its west coast bases came at a moment when fears ran high in diplomatic circles that the European war might explode anew with lightning thrusts into the Netherlands or other neutral countries.

A laconic "further tactical exercises and training" was the explanation given last night for the unexpected change in navy plans. Admiral James O. Richardson, fleet commander, said that no significance was attached to the decision.

If a coincidence, the change nevertheless coincided with the Loudonville Couple Accused of Buying Stolen Metal.

A Loudonville father and son were held last night under a combined bond of $1,500, charged with purchasing metal stolen from the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company several months ago.

They are Benjamin Polsky, 46, and his son, R. L. Polsky, 22. The pair was given a preliminary hearing last night in Ashland before Justice of Peace J. H. Armstrong.

They are charged with purchasing $680 worth of block tin metal, claimed stolen several months ago from the Empire plant. Two other Loudonville men were released after questioning.

COLUMBUS, Ohio—Lowell Fess, mayor of Yellow Springs, declared today that Republican State Chairman Ed D. Schorr was "the worst menace in Ohio to Republican success."

Fess, a candidate for a Republican congressional-at-large nomination and son of the late U. S. Senator Simon D. Fess, asserted in a statement that Schorr "insults our intelligence by telling all Ohio Republicans . . . not only how to vote but for whom we must vote on primary day, May 14."

Telephone Lines Reserved For Use of Government During Night of Alarms.

(By Associated Press)

AMSTERDAM—Intense military preparations, accompanied by a partial "blackout" of communications with the outside world during the night, kept the Netherlands in a state of suspense today. The nation geared its defenses to meet an international situation officially described as "increasingly uncertain."

Reports that two German columns are converging on the Netherlands frontier were said by a highly reliable source in New York last night to be responsible for the unusual precautions, but authorities in Berlin issued a blanket denial of these reports.

(In Washington the Netherlands minister, Dr. A. Loudon, disclosed his government had directed him to act as general paymaster for all Dutch diplomats and their officials abroad "in case of emergency.")

Outgoing telephone calls to all points abroad were cut off from 10 p. m. last night until 8 a. m. (2:40 a. m. EST) today, and a government announcement said the same restrictions would be in effect again tonight.

Incoming telephone calls from abroad were not affected by the "blackout" order, and telegraph service was only nominally disturbed.

An official explanation said that the action had been taken to reserve telephone lines for government use during the hours specified.

(Radio announcements, picked up in New York, said that the Mercury Swings Up Again, Cooler Weather Forecast.

Cloudy tonight, scattered showers and somewhat cooler tomorrow are forecast today by the man who does nothing but think about the weather.

But in spite of that, it was still spring today—to the amazement of the skeptics who admit that they won't be surprised if there is a snow storm in June.

Fruit trees began to show some promise of buds and in Central park tulips are in bloom and trees are sprouting their first leaves.

Average temperature for the past 25 hours was five points higher than the average for the same date over a 15-year period. The mercury had climbed to 72 at noon and promised to go even higher.

House Numbers 4 Inches High Required by Council Action

City council in its effort to untangle the city's house numbering puzzle added more confusion to the situation last night by revising the 30-year-old building ordinance to make posting of numbers four inches in height mandatory.

Sponsored by George Berg, street committee chairman, the amendment requires the city engineer to notify all property owners of improper markings and to order correction within 90 days.

Failure of any owner to comply after notification places responsibility of posting the correct number on the building in the hands of the service director, the charge being placed on the tax duplicate for collection.

With approximately 5,000 discrepancies in the marking sys-

Figures In British Cabinet Battle

Here are the three principal figures in the debate now raging in the British house of commons over the government's conduct of the war. Top left, Clement R. Attlee, leader of the powerful British labor party, who assailed the Chamberlain government in debate yesterday. Top right is Prime Minister Chamberlain, on his way to address the house and defend the conduct of the war. Lower picture is Winston Churchill, to whom Chamberlain yesterday delegated the authority of virtual "general manager" of Britain's war effort.

UNITED PRESS WRITER KILLED

Webb Miller Blackout Victim; Body Discovered Along Railroad Track.

LONDON—(UP)—Webb Miller, 48, famous United Press reporter who risked his life under fire in four major wars, was found dead today beside a railroad track—apparently the victim of a prosaic accident during the London blackout.

He had just covered Prime Minister Chamberlain's historic statement in Commons on the British withdrawal from Norway, but his war correspondent's kit was packed and he hoped soon to be back on the firing line in the latest war of his long and brilliant career.

It was presumed the accident occurred sometime after 9 o'clock last night. Miller was on his way to the country to get a good night's rest before returning for today's session of the House of Commons. Blackout restrictions required that lights on trains be extinguished when approaching a station. Police

Former Premier Bitterly Lashes Conduct of War

Says Surrender of Cabinet Would Be Its Greatest Contribution to Victory, Commons Votes on Confidence Tonight After Hot Debate.

(By United Press)

LONDON—David Lloyd George, fiery little World war premier, told a cheering house of commons today that "nothing would contribute more to victory" in the war against Germany than the resignation of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Leading a climactic attack on conduct of the war in Norway prior to a life-or-death vote on the Chamberlain cabinet tonight, Lloyd George clashed with the prime minister and said:

"There is nothing that could contribute more to victory in this war than that the prime minister should sacrifice the seals of office."

The opposition benches cheered loudly.

"For three or four years everything that has been done has been half-hearted and ineffective without drive or intelligence," Lloyd George said.

"The prime minister met this formidable foe (Hitler) in peace and in war."

"He has always been worsted," the commons roared with laughter when Lloyd George warned that he would not let his old friend, Churchill, become "an air raid shelter for the rest of the government members."

The facts given by Sir Samuel Hoare, air minister, regarding Norway "are no defense for the government," he said.

"The first installment of our forces to Norway should have been picked men," he went on. "The Germans had picked men."

"We are all proud to read of the gallantry of our men," Lloyd George said.

"It is all the more a shame that we should make fools of them. . . . There is no cause for panic, but there is a grave cause for pulling ourselves together."

He charged that neutral countries no longer would put faith in British promises unless bolder action were taken.

"Tell me one neutral country that would be prepared to stand up to the Nazis on a mere promise from us," he said.

DANGER: Pope Shares Belief Other Nations to Be Invaded

BELGRADE—(INS)—Germany has informed the Balkan nations that she will intervene militarily in event of an Allied invasion only if the Balkans cannot defend themselves, the Berlin correspondent of the newspaper Politika reported today.

(By Associated Press)

ROME—Pope Pius XII made it known today he shared widespread fears that other countries were in danger of invasion.

Addressing an audience of 4,000 pilgrims, including 41 French children, at the Vatican, the Pope said "a world poisoned with lies and disloyalty has lost the spiritual health of peace."

"The earth should be a place of concord," the pontiff declared, "but instead the fire of war has broken out in various nations and is threatening to invade others."

Meanwhile, tension in the Mediterranean subsided somewhat as it became evident Italy still was watching the moves of other countries and particularly the fate of the Chamberlain government before taking any belligerent action.

BOMBED: Eye-Witness Story Of Destroyer Sinking Related

By ARTHUR MENKEN
(UP Special Correspondent)

A NORTHERN PORT, SCOTLAND—(Delayed by Censor)—Namsos and the surrounding country was riddled with spies when the British-French expeditionary forces withdrew last Friday to be subjected to five German bombing attacks during which the French destroyer Afridi and the British destroyer Bison were sunk.

The Allied troop transports crept into Namsos Thursday night and left the next day crowded with British soldiers and members of the crack French Chasseurs.

The Germans were 25 miles away in the direction of Bangsund and 50 miles away in the direction of Snaso, to the south and southwest of Namsos. I saw no Norwegian soldiers in Namsos and I do not believe that the Norwegians fought a rear guard action to cover the Allied withdrawal.

There were many spies in Namsos and surrounding country, and it was impossible to trust the civilian population.

The troop transports and their

British-French convoy ran the gauntlet of five intensive air raids by 50 German bombing planes which dropped 200 bombs. The Afridi and the Bison went down, but not a single member of the Allied Norwegian expeditionary force was lost.

Big California Delegation Pledged to Roosevelt

GARNER GIVEN BULK OF VOTE IN OWN STATE

Speaker Bankhead Selected as Favorite Son Presidential Choice by Alabama.

(By Associated Press)
Roosevelt third term supporters added the big California delegation to their growing forces today as a result of a Democratic primary sweep.

A National convention slate pledged to the president defeated a Garner ticket 6 to 1, and held nearly a 3 to 1 majority over the combined vote for Garner and two uncommitted tickets.

While the Roosevelt candidates were carrying virtually every California county, Vice President Garner won the vast bulk of the delegates chosen for the Texas state Democratic convention and Speaker Bankhead (D-Ala.) was given favorite son support by the 22 national delegates elected in Alabama.

These developments highlighted election activity yesterday in six states. Only one senatorial race was involved. Sen. Charles Andrews of Florida led for Democratic renomination, but apparently will be forced into a runoff primary against Bernard MacFadden, magazine publisher and New Deal critic.

Two for Garner.
Despite the one-sided Roosevelt victory in California, two Garner delegates may be among the 44 going to the Chicago convention. There were two vacancies on the third term slate, and election officials said that the two highest candidates on the next ticket—the Garner one—would be designated to fill them.

Running third was an uncommitted "ham and eggs" pension delegation, and fourth was a so-called Liberal-left wing group headed by Lieut. Gov. Ellis Patterson, who had bolted the Roosevelt slate of Gov. Culbert L. Olson.

In Texas, Garner headquarters said that the vice president had won 653 delegates chose in county conventions against 32 for the president. Nearly every county convention, however, endorsed the Roosevelt administration and many delegates to the state meeting were pledged not to aid any "stop Roosevelt" movement.

Renominated.
Gov. Harlan Bushfield won Republican renomination in the South Dakota primary, and will be opposed by Lewis Bicknell, Democrat.

Indiana voters apparently re-nominated the state's congressional delegation.

Democrats elected uncommitted delegates to the National convention in Florida and South Dakota, while an uncommitted Republican slate was chosen without opposition in California.

Altogether the Democrats elected 88 and the Republicans 52 National convention delegates yesterday to bring their respective totals to 480 and 588. The Democratic convention will have 1,094 votes and the Republican 1,000.

About three-fourths of the Democratic delegates already chosen are pledged to President Roosevelt or have shown favoritism for him. Postmaster General Farley has 38½, while three in Wisconsin are pledged to Garner. The remainder are uncommitted.

Most of the Republican delegates chosen are uncommitted. Thomas E. Dewey of New York has 96 pledged or semi-pledged votes, and Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio has two pledged votes so far.

Newspaper Ads
Increase Bank
Personal Loans

WOOSTER — (AP) — Newspaper advertisements get the best results in marketing personal loans, a group of Ohio bankers was informed today by Thomas J. Kiphart, public relations director for the Fifth Third Union Trust company of Cincinnati.

"Don't stress the fact that banks want to make loans," Kiphart advised in an address prepared for a meeting of group eight of the Ohio Bankers association at Wooster college.

"Instead show how a loan will help the borrower by emphasizing the benefits of this service to the user of consumer credit," he said. "Hold your advertising to necessities and the solution of emergency problems. Don't inspire people to borrow merely to satisfy a desire."

"Newspaper advertisements are almost universally the best result getters, where enough money is used in the promotional effort," he continued. "In most instances it is better to use a large space twice a week and fill in other days with spot announcements."

Donahey Promises Approval of Candidate

Up and Down THE STREET

Don Cram, Y. M. C. A. physical director, won't have to worry about getting to work on time in the morning for the rest of the week as he will be spending his nights as well as days at the "Y" building through Sunday. Cram has rigged up a cot in the gymnasium and will act as "night watchman" while the annual Buckeye hobby show is in progress in the gym.

Harry Altner, Mansfield man who is doing art work with the civic theater of Mexico City, had an unusual experience recently. He wanted to consult Diego Rivera, great Mexican mural painter who is famous for his murals in Rockefeller Center and the General Motors building in Detroit. He was directed to the Rivera estate and when he got there found several houses on it. He rapped on a door and got no answer, and then knocked again. A voice demanded to know what was wanted. Altner went to a barred window to locate the voice. Behind it was a bearded face that was very familiar. "I'm Leon Trotsky," the voice said. And so it was. The international Communist exile lives behind bars on the Rivera estate.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton believes in practicing what he advocates. Urging Mansfielders to co-operate in the annual spring clean-up and fire prevention campaign Crafton today had employed relief workers to wash down the walls in the City Hall. Already well along with the work in the police department, the workers will move to the upper floor offices when completed there, the director said.

Property owners on an unnamed drive at the rear of 147 East Third street arrived at a novel way of selecting a name for the street and coincidentally hit upon an ancient Hebrew name. Taking the first letters of their last names they asked council last night to name the drive Micah place so they could obtain house numbers. Micah is the name of one of the books of the Old Testament and is one of the shortest in the Bible.

DEFENDS PLANT IN LABOR SCRAP

Hydraulic Press President
Denies Company Refused to Confer With Workers.

MT. GILEAD—Howard MacMillin, president of the Hydraulic Press Manufacturing company, today flatly denied that the company had refused to confer with employees, as charged yesterday by A. J. Skundor, representative of the International Association of Machinists, an A. F. of U. union.

MacMillin also denied a statement by Skundor that the company discontinued its night shift last week to interfere with the organization of a union among employees.

In a formal statement issued today, MacMillin said the company had not had any labor trouble in its 63 years of existence, and had none now.

MacMillin said that a representative of an outside union had called on him this week but had no authority to show that he represented any plant employee, and was told that the company could deal only with a group or representative selected by a majority of the men in the plant.

Skundor yesterday announced that about 100 employees of the plant had been initiated into the machinists' union, and that a charter had been applied for. He also said charges of unfair labor practices had been filed with the national labor relations board in Washington by the local against the company.

MacMillin said the night shift at the plant had been curtailed because it was necessary to have full day-time supervision of the work, a large amount of which is being done for the government.

"We simply decline to help this representative organize our plant, because it would be a violation of the labor law," MacMillin's statement said. "We feel sure the men who work here who have known us as friends and neighbors understand the situation perfectly and know when they come to us for anything they will be received as in the past as friends and neighbors," the statement added.

COUNCIL MEETING OR CAUCUS, THEY STILL EAT UP THE HOURS

That overworked phrase—it isn't the heat it's the humidity—has a new paraphrase in Mansfield.

As someone suggested, it isn't the council meetings, it's the caucus. City council held a three and a half hour session last night—an hour and a half in caucus, an hour and a half in open session and a half hour recess.

The caucus idea has more or less been abandoned in the past two or three years with the result that there has been lengthy discussions on the floor at the meetings.

Faced with a full legislative hopper, council met an hour early last night in caucus to consider the city business.

Caucuses aren't new with city councils. They are held to iron out controversial issues and eliminate any discussion on these measures when they come up on the floor. Last night's session, however, apparently failed in this purpose for the open meeting dragged along as usual due to constant bickering over legislation.

The session, however, brought out one thing. That was the renewal of a request for a legislative committee, suggested on several earlier occasions, but never acted upon.

Need for the committee to study legislative proposals before they are submitted to council was brought to the front again last night when two or three measures appeared, apparently without a sponsor.

I'm fed up on this way of handling business," Philip Smith, councilman-at-large, said, when an appropriation measure was submitted.

He pointed out the need for the committee and suggested that something be done about it. He was backed by Councilman C. N. Shultz.

Suggestion that a legislative committee be set up was made two months ago but to date nothing has been done about it.

"I stay home from work today, only the book I'm reading is on my desk."

BULKLEY AND JULIAN GIVE AID TO WHITE

Politicians Await Senator's
Stand on Gubernatorial Race of Democrats.

(By United Press)
COLUMBUS—A promised statement by Senator Vic Donahey on the seven-man Democratic gubernatorial primary fight in Ohio was eagerly awaited by politicians today after two prominent Ohioans aligned with the New Deal had endorsed former Gov. George White, of Marietta, for another nomination.

An endorsement of White by W. A. Julian, of Cincinnati, treasurer of the United States, was followed shortly thereafter by a similar endorsement from former U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley, of Cleveland.

Whether Donahey will openly approve any of the seven candidates for the party nomination for governor was not known, but he said yesterday he would have a statement regarding the contest today or tomorrow. Although Donahey has been quoted as saying he would not step into the fight, it was recalled that he bitterly opposed former Gov. Martin L. Davey, one of the candidates, when Davey sought renomination in 1938. In announcing his retirement from politics several months ago Donahey also said that he would speak out on party matters whenever he thought it advisable.

Bulkley's endorsement for White was significant in view of the fact that in 1938 with New Deal support he defeated White for the Democratic senatorial nomination. He also had been instrumental in bringing Charles West, of Granville, into the 1934 Democratic senatorial primary against both White and Donahey, the latter, however, won the nomination.

The support of Julian and Bulkley was taken by most observers to bear out reports that the federal element of the Democratic party in Ohio will help White win the nomination so far as it can within the limits of the Hatch "no politics" law which prohibits federal employees from active political work.

STIRS PROTESTS

Traffic Lights Covered, City
Deluged With Complaints.

A barrage of complaints were lodged with Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton this morning less than two hours after the city had taken steps to eliminate two of its 56 traffic light signals.

Acting on recommendations from council's light committee, Crafton today ordered signals at West First street and Sturges avenue, and at Harker and Mulberry streets covered and stop signs erected at the intersections.

In less than an hour two west side citizens had appeared at the service director's office to protest. Crafton said one of them threatened court action to prohibit removal of the light from the Sturges-West First street intersections.

He said the move had been taken after complaints had been made about the number of signals in outlying districts.

In the face of numerous telephone protests received in his office today Crafton said the lights would remain covered until council's committee was satisfied that there was a demand for their operation.

HOLLYWOOD—I want a role I can get my teeth in. I miss a live audience, but I think movies are a teddily interesting medium. No art, of course, but money is nice, too. My public in the theater is my real public. I must go back to the theater some day—if only I can find a vehicle. I think talkies are here to stay.

I am a very handsome fellow, and oftentimes my face I prefer to consider "merely interesting." I am Adonis and Narcissus, and I am a mugg. My versatility is unbounded. I leap from role to role like a gooty gazelle, and I am hopelessly "typed." I think my private life is my own, and I will not murder my mother for publicity—what else can you suggest?

I am a good guy, and a "regular," and I am a heel. I am well heeled, and I don't know where my next meal is coming from. I live in Beverly Hills, and Brentwood, and Bel-Air, and Encino, and Pacific Palisades, and I have a modest little bungalow of eight rooms, 10 baths, a swimming pool and 10 servants. I also live in a hall-room, bath down the hall off Hollywood boulevard, and sometimes I spend the night with friends, if I have any friends.

I HAVE a yacht, an airplane, race horses, and a pawn ticket on my wife's plummy diamond earring. I have had one wife, two wives, three wives, four wives, and I have loved them dearly. I also have one wife whom I have bottom, and I played all the tank band deeply enough to have no others. I have married in Yuma, and I have been in the penitentiary, and I have also not married at all, as yet, and I have my roles, and I am well as in church. I have even said a muggle trying to get alone, married in Hollywood. You have no idea how irksome alimony can become.

I am a big, and a gentleman, and a scholar, and a fool for luck, and I worked my way up from the bottom, and I played all the tank band deeply enough to have no others. With MARIANNE

YOU'LL want to remember Mother on her day this Sunday, and so if you're just now wondering what to give her in honor of the occasion, you'll be delighted with the suggestions that the downtown stores are offering.

She'll most certainly be pleased with a pretty package of cologne or perfume—and some of the newest of these have been introduced by a French perfumer. . . . The cologne bottles are trimmed with pastel shades of grosgrain ribbon and nestle in piliform boxes filled with curled cellophane. . . . And the pleasant summertime scents include Pink Hyacinth, Mountain Greenery, Carnation, Gardenia, Deep Lilac and Of Thee I Sing.

Marianne

The same perfume house also is featuring tiny flacons of perfume (in Of Thee I Sing, Carnation, Gardenia and Mechant fragrances) tied on pastel colored cards bedecked with sprays of little flowers. . . . As their special for Mother's day, another French perfumery is showing regal-looking ivory tinted cartons containing a dainty silk sachet pillow with a gay, "golden" perfume carrier (purse-size, with a snap-top). . . . And you can purchase the perfume and sachet in such lovely fragrances as "Tzigane," "Possession" or "L'Ardente Nuit."

No matter where she goes, your mother will like to have nice luggage—and enough of it. . . . So with summer rapidly approaching, she'll more than appreciate a gift of luggage this Sunday. . . . Some of the newest ladies' wardrobe suitcases come in brown pin-striped finish with rawhide trim—featuring removable dress pack, small water-proof silk zipper pocket for make-up and the like, ribbon ties to hold things in place and a felt pocket for articles that scratch or mar. . . . There's also a handy matching hat and shoe pack which holds six pairs of shoes, several hats and has a pocket in the lid for hosiery. . . . A 21-inch week-end case and an 18-inch overnight bag complete this ensemble—and all, as well as any one of these pieces, is certain to give traveling added zest and pleasure.

WHETHER at home or away, letter writing will take on added glory if the stationery is just right. . . . One of the local shops is showing plain papers in white and ivory tones, others with a hairline stripe, and many styles of the featherweight paper to be used for air postage. . . . Colors such as aqua and blue are making a play for popularity, and some folding sheets with white borders look especially crisp and cool for summer correspondence. . . . Deckle edged writing paper is always in good taste, while something a little newer along this line can be found in "starched pique," a perky paper with a scalloped edge, which comes in both letter and note paper sizes.

If your mother indulges in occasional gay and frivolous touches, she'll undoubtedly be well pleased—and a little amused—with one of those foxy lapel gadgets which combine leather, wood and metal in such clever little objects as a spinning wheel, a wishing well, an airplane propeller, and a variety of clocks which include both alarms and cuckoos!

With warm and still warmer weather in the offing for the next few months, your mother would undoubtedly be delighted with something cool and comfortable in the way of nightdresses. . . . Sheer gowns and pajamas in floral sprayed pastel batistes make an appreciated gift, as would any of the gay summer housecoats that are being shown now—these come in bluster sheers, seersuckers and washable silks in light colored prints featuring zipper front closing and wrap-around styles. . . . Among the ideal gifts are such combinations as a silk crepe gown with sheer matching negligee and batiste gowns with fluffy little bed-jackets of the same material.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

Settle Upon Rising Hour

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, PH.D.

As the days grow longer babies and young children want to arise earlier. But it is not well for babies and young children to get up with the birds. Consider the sleep they lose when they do and sleep their mothers also lose.

Regardless of the season, many babies and young children don't sleep nearly long enough in the morning. Some young children, especially on the farm, get up when their parents do—at four or five or six—and stay up till their parents go to bed. Such need not happen. It won't if the parents make a sensible plan and carry this plan through.

You say it can't be done, except with a few children? Yes it can. It was done with my children and it was done with many other children I have studied. The cost in pain to the parent and child to accomplish it is about nothing. The gain to both parent and child in comfort, health and general welfare is ten thousand-fold, perhaps.

Decide on a desirable hour for the tot to get up in the morning. Set the alarm clock for that time. When the clock rings go for the child, or if he is old enough let him get up and dress alone. If he awakens earlier let that be his privilege, but he must not stand in the crib or get out of his cot till the designated time. If he does, give him pain without exception—a good smack, preferably. Don't tell him to go back to sleep, merely that he must not get up. If you hold yourself literally to this program, he will find the world so drab and unattractive that he will after a few mornings, just fall back to sleep. But if you are inconsistent, don't hold yourself rigidly to the clock, or if in any way you create the slightest doubt in his mind about the program, he will hold out indefinitely—beg, whine, cry and create all sorts of disturbances.

Then don't expect him to sleep later on Sunday or the Fourth of July than any other day. He should rise at exactly the same hour the year around. Continue with this program indefinitely after the child enters school. As he nears adolescence, even earlier, he may want to sleep longer than his school program will allow.

Some parents, thinking only of their own comfort and welfare, will allow the child to get up and play quietly with his toys whenever he happens to awaken. It's their child, of course, but if they are considering his health and welfare, they probably will prefer to train him to sleep until a regular reasonable hour in the morning. They should remember that it is not only the hour when a child goes to bed that determines how much he sleeps, but also the time when he awakens in the morning. They should realize, moreover, that the child who chooses least sleep is the very child who needs most of it, being so excitable and high-strung.

You may have a chart of desirable hours of sleep for children at various ages by writing me in care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Where is Mary?" Phil asked. "Why is she not here?"

"I am sorry if I have displeased you," I said with carefully posed humility. "But Mary is naturally very nervous, although she is concealing her nervousness admirably, and I forbade her to come down until I sent for her. Her delay is my fault entirely. Shall I fetch her now?"

"If you please," he said formally.

She must have been watching for me, for her door was slightly ajar, and she flung it wide open as I approached, presenting a figure so vibrant, so brilliant, so poised, that I felt all my doubts slipping away from me. What-ever might be the final effect of this gruelling test before her, she would go through it gallantly, with no hint of faltering. I was sure of that.

"Well, Auntie Madge!" she caroled gayly. "See you've come to conduct me to the guillotine. But you should be in a flowing robe of black. You're altogether too gay. I've put on my best clothes as a sop to tradition. They al-

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, May 9.

Although the general trend of events on this day may be toward the routine and usual, according to lunar operations, there may arise some peculiar or subtle elements to lift affairs from the mediocre or static. There may be vague undercurrents, not sinister but challenging the ability to cope with the intangible. This will not be found wanting, since the energies will be well stimulated and the judgment sound and dependable. Much is to be gained by systematic effort, perseverance and assuming responsibility.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a fairly routine and steady year, in which much depends upon the capacity to estimate the source and importance of rather subtle or intriguing developments in the customary trend of events. These may not be dangerous and the mind and character will be ready to cope with complex situations, being particularly shrewd and trustworthy. Persistence, industry and discrimination may be counted on to bridge perplexities and assure enduring gain.

A child born on this day may have a sound intellect and much sturdiness of character, although having certain complexities or subtleties that may at times make it difficult to understand.

RE-ELECTED

BUCYRUS—Members of the advisory council of the Crawford county board of health re-elected Charles Hildebrand of New Washington as a member of the board for a five year term when they met Monday night in the office of County Health Commissioner G. T. Wasson.

"Go down to Aunt Lillian's room, where I'm staying temporarily, and get me an extra handkerchief. They're in my little week-end bag standing against the desk."

"I fly," Mary said extravagantly, and the second she was out of earshot I drew close to Noel and whispered:

"As soon as you're sure we're in the library, go down the back way, then in the door from the veranda, and go into my little study off the library. Hide in the closet if anyone comes into the room, which I'm sure nobody will. But you'll be able to hear and see everything. Only one thing. You must promise to remain absolutely quiet no matter what you hear or see."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authority"

NOT YET STANDARDIZED

Bidding is not yet standardized, nor will it ever be, for the very simple reason that human beings who bid can not be standardized. Fine players who think they are using exactly the same system will produce entirely different lines of thought on some deals and consequently take widely variant action. It is this factor that makes bridge a game which will go on and on—the infinite variety in the way that certain clearly understood and agreed principles are applied.

Twelve players, who had made the best individual season records in the team play of New York's Inter-Club Contract league, were competing for the individual championship at three tables when this deal came along. The bidding and the result were different in all three cases, as follows:

South's 5-Spade contract at Table 1 was defeated two tricks, by one trick in clubs, two in hearts and one in diamonds. North's jump in spades was criticized as too strong, tempting the slam invitation and overhigh contract.

At Table 2, East made his doubled 5-Clubs for a big East-West top, losing only one trick in diamonds and one in clubs. At Table 3, North made his four spades because East tried to be fancy and

HOPPERS' ON GRAPE LEAF

GET READY FOR THE GRAPE LEAF HOPPER

If you are already anticipating a luscious crop from your grape vines this coming harvest season, then get ready to combat the grape leaf hopper, for it is the most common pest of grapevines. Unless checked, hoppers will cause great damage to grapevines from year to year. The hoppers winter over in the debris under the vines.

As shown in today's Garden-Graphs, these sucking insects are found feeding on the undersides of the grape leaves. Their presence is indicated by whitish spots on the upper leaf surface. As a result of the injury caused by the hoppers the grape leaves soon take on a mottled gray coloring, which is followed by browning and withering.

The young of the leaf hopper are wingless, although the adults develop wings. In color the leaf hoppers are a pale yellow with red markings, and are about one-eighth of an inch long.

To control grape leaf hoppers, spray the undersides of the foliage with a nicotine soap solution.

Findlay Invades Braves' Wigwam at Fairground Park

Peek-a-Boo, I See You!

Now, isn't that a swell pose for a ball player! But it's one of those things caught by the camera during a close play at first base. The peek-a-boos are Dick Siebert, Athletics' first baseman.

FIGHTING desperately to regain their winning stride the Mansfield Braves entertain the undefeated Findlay Oilers under the stars at the Fairground park at 8:15 p. m. today.

While Manager Dewey Stover was undecided today who would handle the mound duties there is a possibility that Dick Otto, 19-year-old right-hander, may face the rampaging Oilers.

Four pitchers paraded to the hill for the Braves last night as they dropped an 8 to 7 decision to Findlay — the second straight defeat by a run margin. Tiffin beat the Braves, 10-9 Monday night.

Although they outbit the pace-makers, 13 to 11, the Braves' moundsmen were unable to halt the Oilers as they marked up their fourth straight triumph.

Trailing 6 to 4 as play opened in the ninth, the Mansfield club drove over two runs to take the lead, but Findlay had other ideas and sent a pair of markers over in their half of the frame to put the game in the ice box.

Stan Kudelitz, a southpaw rookie, was the first Mansfield pitcher to feel the sting of the Oilers bats. Manager Stover removed the youngster in the fifth, and then Gene Stockdale, and two veterans, Lloyd Joyce and George Laurila marched to the hill.

Mansfield tallied once in the fourth to take an early lead, but Findlay rubbed out the advantage with a three-run uprising in the fifth. There was still plenty of fight in the Braves for they broke loose with a three-run spurge in the first of the sixth to again regain the lead only to see Findlay punch over two runs in the same inning to gain a 6-4 lead.

Howard Beals and Eldon Dice paced the Braves at the plate. Beals cracked out a homer in the sixth, and added a double and single, while Dice secured three singles. It was Beals' second home run of the season.

Young Otto will be making his second appearance on the mound for the Braves tonight. He started the opening game, against Lima but was relieved by Dick Green in the second inning.

Prussing went the limit for the Oilers last night to receive credit for the victory. Laurila was charged with the defeat.

Last night's defeat left the Braves with a 500 per cent mark for the season. Mansfield won its first two contests.

Weakness on the hill has led to both Mansfield setbacks. The club has been powdering the ball, but the hurlers have been unable to throttle the opposition.

Fans Can Ride to Ball Game Free of Charge.

Free bus transportation will be provided by the Mansfield Braves baseball club for tonight's Findlay-Mansfield Ohio State league contest at the Fairground at 8:15. The bus will leave the corner of Third and Main streets at 7:30 and 8 o'clock. The free rides to the park will be provided for fans the balance of the season, Joe C. Hartline, club president, stated today.

Weinbrenner Whiffs 14 In 5-2 Triumph

Tinkey Lumber Hurler Gives Up Two Bingles.

No matter how successful a season Nick's Place softballers enjoy this year they'll probably not forget Trib Weinbrenner and the Tinkey Lumber company team.

After crashing through with a one-sided 11 to 2 triumph over Kobacker's Monday, the Nick's club met up with the Lumber combine at Liberty park yesterday and finished on the short end of a 5 to 2 score.

Weinbrenner fanned 14 and limited the losers to two hits as he hurled the Lumbers to their initial victory of the season. He encountered trouble in one inning — the fifth — when Nick's outfit tallied its two markers.

Meanwhile the Lumbers, although they only secured six hits off Appelman, hunched them to score once in the first and twice in the second to take a lead they never relinquished.

Cardinals Wallop Dodgers

By JUDSON BAILEY

ONE thing you can say about the Brooklyn Dodgers — when they fall they fall hard.

A club capable of winning 11 out of 13 games ordinarily would be expected to get squeezed out of the other two, but not the always-different Dodgers.

Their first flop after winning nine consecutive games, was 9-1 at Cincinnati and their second was 18-2 in St. Louis yesterday.

It was just one of those days. Hugh Casey, who was the victim in that previous defeat, was on the mound again.

The Cardinal powerhouse, short circuited for weeks, made the right connection and piff! 20 hits, seven home runs, 49 total bases. The performance tied the National league record for homers in one game and bettered the modern league mark for total bases. Johnny Mize and Rookie Eddie Lake each hit two homers and Don Padgett, Joe Medwick and Stu Martin added one apiece.

It was a rough day for all the New York teams. Joe DiMaggio returned to the Yankees' lineup and didn't do them a bit of good — getting one single in five times at bat. Once he fouled out with the bases loaded.

The upshot was that the Detroit

Tigers topped the champs 4-2 for their fourth straight defeat and dropped the once haughty club into a tie for last place in the American league.

The Cincinnati Reds turned in a 7-6 victory over the New York Giants.

Ike Pearson pitched the Phillies to a 1-0 decision over the Chicago Cubs in one of the best hurling shows of the season, dealing out four widely spaced hits while Claude Passeau and Vern Ose of the Cubs allowed five.

The Pittsburgh Pirates were knocked into the National league cellar on the heels of their seventh straight defeat, 11-9, by the Boston Bees.

The Boston Red Sox took the deciding game of their series with Cleveland 6-4 to shunt the Indians into third place in the American league, a notch below Detroit.

The Chicago White Sox turned back the Philadelphia Athletics 6-3 on the joint five-hit pitching effort of Jack Knott and Pete Appleton and the four errors the A's themselves committed.

A wild pitch by John Whitehead with the bases loaded and the score tied gave the Washington Senators their winning run in the tenth inning for a 6-5 verdict over the St. Louis Browns.

Bellville Wins Richland County Baseball Title.

Bellville high's Bluejays will represent Richland county in the district high school baseball tournament at Tiffin. The Bellville team won the right to make the trip by beating Shiloh, 7 to 5, on the Bellville diamond in the finals yesterday. Bill Martin was on the hill for the Bluejays and gave up four hits. Six Bellville errors enabled the Drummer Boys to remain in the thick of the battle.

Cincinnati Reds Sweep Giant Series

Move Within Half a Game Of Lead With 7-6 Win.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — The rampant Reds have a chance to take the National league lead today — if the Bees and Cubs co-operate.

The second place Cincinnati club meets Boston here while the top flight Dodgers invade Chicago. A victory for the Reds and defeat of Brooklyn would switch their positions.

Paul Derringer is assigned to the task of beating the Bees, against Hurler Bill Posedel.

The Reds moved to within a half game of the league lead yesterday by taking a 7 to 6 decision from the Giants while the Cardinals trounced the Flatbush gang 18 to 2.

The triumph was a close call for the Rhinelanders. The Giants scored four times in the eighth for a one-run lead but the Reds came right back in their half of the late frame for two winning runs and a clean sweep of the series with New York. It was Cincinnati's fifth straight victory.

Hard luck pushed Harry Danning, Giant catcher. He got two homers and a single to bat in four of the Giants runs, but dropped the ball on a double steal which tied the score.

Bill Lohman allowed Cincinnati seven hits in five innings; relief hurlers Roy Joiner and Walter (Jumbo) Brown gave five more sacrifices.

Open Golfers to Find Canterbury Unaltered

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Cleveland's Canterbury club will greet its national open guests next month without "doling up."

The golfing great will find the course "just like we play it," a club official reported today, answering inquiries from several sources but particularly from Houston's Jimmy Demaret, crown prince of the winter golf trail.

Jimmy wanted to know how high the grass would be allowed to grow around the greens.

"All the year round we play on well-groomed courses," he complained, "and then when we go to the national open we find the course so doctored up that the greens are of no use at all. They let the grass grow so high that you have to use a blaster where a chip should be necessary."

Canterbury's turf will be kept down to fairway length in the chip shot area, explained Jack Way, 102 sandfilled traps and stream manager of the club. The United States Golf association recommended a five-inch rough.

The club's arrangement of greens, tees and fairways, nevertheless, is calculated to dull the sharp blades. Its terrain is swept continually by gusts of wind off Lake Erie which exact a stiff tribute in strayed shots.

Par for the 6,933-yard course is 72, three strokes above that of the Philadelphia Country club where Toledo's Byron Nelson captured the title last year. The layout is well-balanced, its contour rolling, and was designed for scores between 90 and 120.

Although most approaches are untraced, the greens are less undulating than those usually found on championship courses. Putting remains difficult, nevertheless, for the contours are more subtle and therefore less easily recognized. There are no fairway hazards, but 102 sandfilled traps and streamers stretch out behind greens and at the edge of the rough.

Zedeker Collects Sub-Par 32 At Coolridge Country Club

Gene Zedeker, last year's Coolridge champion, toured that course yesterday with a brilliant 32, two under par for the nine-hole course.

During the nine holes, Zedeker used his putter on an average of only once for each green — a total of nine putts for the round.

Zedeker scored three birdies, on the first, fourth and fifth holes. All the rest of the holes were even par with the exception of the eighth, where he went one over.

Also turning in impressive scores at Coolridge were Felix Clerice and Red Keck. Clerice posted a 39 and Keck registered a 39 and a 36.

AVIATIONS IN LIST LEADING QUIET ADVANCE

Steels and Specialties Also Favored in Early Swing in Stock Market Today.

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK—Steels, aviation and specialties led the stock market on another quiet and selective advance today.

Favored on the early swing were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, United Aircraft, Eastern Air Lines, American Airlines and Montgomery Ward.

Bonds were uneven, with "British Empire dollar loans again weak. Another break in the "free" pound sterling was a bit disconcerting to recovery proponents. Commodities were mostly higher. Foreign markets were mixed.

Studied by market analysts was the summary of the Edison Electric institute disclosing power output in the United States for the week ended May 4 was slightly under the aggregate of the preceding week but well ahead of the comparable period last year.

A little comfort also was found in the announcement of Under-Secretary of Commerce Edward J. Noble that recent broadening of manufacturers' inventories was "definitely halted" in March.

CHAPTER III

When they had circled the floor once, she felt Rod stiffen. Looking up quickly, she heard him murmur to two men who were just coming in, two men who nodded and studied her briefly but critically before they passed on.

"The short chap is Mr. Glass," Rod said. "The other is Julian Carlton."

The short one . . . she glanced over Rod's shoulder, seeing that Mr. Glass, wearing a dark business suit, was indeed short, stout, bald, spectacled and far advanced in middle age. So it was he, who looked both shrewd and jolly, whose name Rod had spoken with reverence and on whose yacht Rod had spent his vacation last summer. The other, Julian Carlton, who towered above the round Mr. Glass, wore gray tweeds and had a deep tan becoming to fair men. He was many years younger than his companion. He was poised and assured, his profile strong, chin proud and firm. In a room with pale people he looked both distinguished and healthy. It occurred to her, too, she was later to remember, that she had been mistaken in thinking that only men of Rod's dark good looks were handsome.

"I've heard of Mr. Glass, but who is Julian Carlton, Rod?"

Low, he said, "A corporation attorney, a brilliant one. And a brother like Barney. He's just back from Nassau."

When they danced by, Rod nodded again and Brooke looked again, seeing Barney Glass's shrewd little eyes narrow and Julian Carlton's alert blue eyes study her thoughtfully. When the music ended and she returned to the table, she felt the two men were talking about Rod and her.

Rod was smiling. "Curious about them? You'll meet them on Saturday at a cocktail thing Barney is having. At home and on the yacht, he's Barney. In the office, Mr. Glass, of course."

"Saturday?" And was instantly conscious of her Chatham-purchased clothes. "That will give me time to shop tomorrow."

"If you need any money . . ."

"Thank you, no. I've been rather frugal, and not coming to New York for three months . . ."

"I hope that's our dinner coming now. I want to take you up to the apartment. Then I'll have to take you back fairly early because there are some reports I've got to look over before tomorrow. And tomorrow," he frowned, clipped his words short, "well, tomorrow night let Jim tell you what I've turned out to be in his opinion. I'll have to stay at the office and clean up some work before the week-end—if I'm going to spend most of it with you."

As Rod opened the door and switched on the light he looked pleased and proud to show Brooke his new apartment.

The large living-room, furnished in the modern manner, had a newness of a room not lived in. Over a square divan was a round mirror and before the divan a round white table. There were several chairs, a mahogany wall table with a vase of fresh flowers, white lamps, a small ivory radio and a soft brown rug. Venetian blinds shut out the city lights. Brooke felt the absence of a desk and books.

With pride he showed her the tiny kitchen and his bedroom quite crowded with a complete new suite. On the table beside his bed was an enlarged snapshot of her, laughing, her hair wild, taken on a windy autumn day.

"It's lovely, Rod." Obviously he was delighted with it.

"I thought you'd like it. I have a maid come in every morning to clean up. It's the first time I've really lived since I went away to school."

This place is big enough for two, she thought. Why didn't he say it? But he said nothing; he was looking at her. One moment he was aloof and casual, the next aware of her. There were times when his remoteness irritated and frightened her. What brought them close she did not know.

But suddenly he was close again, his warm face against hers.

"Brooke . . . you're so beautiful . . . We can't be here often. . ."

"No, darling. Yes, darling. Oh, I understand. I must. A plan for your life doesn't include a wife in your twenty-fourth year, a wife who would be a hindrance and a burden, a baby perhaps in your twenty-fifth year. It just isn't in the pattern!"

With a desperate little chuckle he said, "I'm going to take you back now."

"Your work. Oh, I forgot."

"I wish I could."

She had not removed her coat and hat.

At the elevator in her hotel he took her hand and held it between his. "I'll call you tomorrow. Good night, Brooke."

Both happy and unhappy, she went into her room. She pulled her hat from her hair and slipped out of the heavy coat. But she knew that many evenings with Rod had been like this—the momentary reaching of a summit, the inevitable plunge and indescribable disappointment that followed. I can't possess him, she thought. I can't own all of him and share every thought. I'm too sensitive, too aware of his change of moods. I must realize that there is a part of him I shall never have; the part that spends eight hours a day in an office I've never seen and with people I've never met.

When she had considered bringing a swift end to her Chatham life, there had been only great optimism; in New York she would see Rod frequently. The complications arising from proximity she had not once considered except in the superficial matter of clothes. But now she knew that there would be people to meet, people like the stout, shrewd Mr. Glass and attractive, interesting-looking Julian Carlton. And she must not be found wanting. She could hear it if women said with hostility and jealousy, "Rod Westover's small-town sweetheart," but she could not hear it if they said it depreciatively.

When she had undressed and put on a warm blue robe, she she thought, Jim. No challenge to be met there. No perplexities. They would talk a great deal and laugh and eat quantities of spaghetti and drink Chianti in the little Italian restaurant where they had been often with Grace and Rod. Breakfast, Jim's unfailing friendliness and the prospect of buying clothes warmed her and dispelled many of the distressing thoughts which last night had kept her awake.

Before she went out she wrote hastily to Grace: "I saw Rod last night and he looks splendid though a little tired. His new apartment, about which you probably knew and which was kept as a surprise for me, is lovely."

She would not mention the differences between Rod and Jim, hoping they could be settled.

"I talked with Jim this morning and we're having dinner together tonight. I'm glad and grateful that you urged a few days of freedom for me before Mrs. Kingsbury arrived. I need them. Forgive the brevity of this. There will be more to tell you after Monday. Come down soon. Love, Brooke."

Later in the day she would write to her father what was certain to be a strained but optimistic little note. Neither with Rod nor with Mrs. Kingsbury must she fail because her father gloomily anticipated her failure with both.

Weary, poorer but elated, she returned to the room late that afternoon, carrying several packages and seeing that others had arrived. Of her two hundred dollars of savings she had spent more than a hundred for two costumes. One was a black suit, with a bit of Persian lamb trimming, which could be worn on mild winter days and far into the spring, a charming little blouse and another crazy little black hat. The other was a black chiffon dinner dress with a clinging voluminous skirt and a long black velvet evening wrap.

Misgivings of her extravagance were quickly dispelled as she opened the packages eagerly and dressed and undressed several times before she wore for Jim what she had worn last night. Then the strained but optimistic little note to her father while she waited.

When Jim called, she said that she would be down directly. As she stepped from the elevator and saw him, no heightened feelings made her wordless, but a pleasant glow warmed her to see some one who was unfailingly the same. She went toward him, her white gloved hand out-stretched, her face so vital and lovely that it was Jim who felt that speech would be difficult.

Wearing a brown suit and a brown sport coat too big for his tall gaunt figure, his dark hair unbrushed, he was as disheveled as ever. To Grace, Jim's lean, sallow face spelled undernourishment and she yearned, Brooke knew, to have him in New Hampshire long enough to "fatten him up." His blue eyes were bright but dreamy, his smile as slow as his voice. But all Jim's charm lay in his slow smile.

LLOYD GEORGE LASHES NORSE WAR FAILURES

Says Chamberlain Resignation Would Be First Sure Step Toward Victory.

The white-haired little Welsh statesman and World-war premier vigorously attacked the British failure in the war in Norway and warned that Adolf Hitler had Germany in a better strategic position than ever was achieved by Kaiser Wilhelm.

"He has put us in greater jeopardy," Lloyd George said.

The German success in Norway, he said, has brought German bombing planes and submarines 200 miles closer to British ports.

The Welsh statesman charged that as a result of the failure in Norway, the influence and prestige of the Allies had been affected in other parts of Europe.

British promissory notes are now rubbish on the market," he asserted amid cries of "shame" from the government benches.

Lloyd George brought the debate near its climax after:

1—Chamberlain had accepted a laborite challenge for a confidence test vote at the end of debate tonight—with the life of his cabinet at stake—and again warned that united action was needed "to face a relentless enemy" who might strike anywhere.

2—Cabinet members had revealed that, perhaps the greatest loss to Britain during the Norwegian campaign was the U-boat sinking of a supply ship carrying urgently needed anti-aircraft guns and that a British fighting plane base established in Norway was bombed to pieces by 80 German planes in a 15-hour raid.

3—A Laborite, Hugh Dalton, had suggested bitterly that the government was pursuing such a feeble policy in the war that the allied forces might soon give up their last foothold in Norway in the Narvik region.

Another Laborite, Herbert Morrison, had pressed for the resignation of Chamberlain. Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Samuel Hoare, air minister, on the grounds that otherwise Great Britain was in danger of losing the war.

Lloyd George's speech was awaited with greater excitement than any statement save that of Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, who is expected to close debate.

The force sent to Norway, Lloyd George said, made British prestige dependent "on a half-baked, half-prepared expeditionary force."

Chamberlain announced his decision to risk the life of his government on the question of confidence to the cheers of members of the house who had just heard a bitter exhortation of Chamberlain by Herbert Morrison, a Labor party leader.

Morrison concluded his attack by announcing that the Labor party was determined to force the issue to a vote tonight.

Chamberlain leaped to his feet and declared that he welcomed the opposition's challenge and would accept their proposal for a vote.

"I accept the challenge," he declared with heat. "I welcome it, indeed, for at least we shall see who is with us and who is against us."

"We are facing a relentless enemy," he asserted, "who must be fought by the united action of this country."

"It may well be," the prime minister said, "that it is a duty to criticize the government. I do not seek to evade criticism but I say this to my friends in the house—and I have friends in the house—no government can prosecute the war efficiently unless it has public and parliamentary support."

Government supporters vociferously cheered Chamberlain's assertion that he had "friends in the house."

In some quarters Chamberlain's spirited retort to Morrison was taken to be a threat to hold a general election if the opposition to him continues to challenge his conduct of the war.

The Conservative whip, Capt. Henry David Reginald Margesson, was vigorously rallying conservative members to the support of the government in anticipation of the vote tonight.

Morrison charged that Chamberlain and some of his fellow cabinet members were employing Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, as a shield to protect them from criticism.

"When the government is in trouble," he declared, "they tend to bring the first lord into the shop window in the belief that will satisfy public criticism."

He charged that if Chamberlain and his close political associates, Sir John Simon, chancellor

Drill Stresses Fire Prevention

Fire prevention was stressed yesterday at John Simpson Junior high school as a part of

of the exchequer, and Sir Samuel Hoare, air minister, remain in office there is grave risk that Britain will lose the war.

Decision to force a vote that is tantamount to a non-confidence ballot was reached by the Labor party prior to renewal of debate this afternoon in which the cabinet leadership waged a battle against opposition that mounted to a point where the outcome seemed doubtful.

Developments included:

1. Chamberlain said that British forces in the Narvik zone faced grave risks pending establishment of Allied air superiority in north Norway, but ignored a critical suggestion by Laborite Hugh Dalton that Allied troops seeking to crush German resistance at the iron-ore port might be withdrawn "in the next week or two."

2. Lord Strabolgi, retired naval officer, joined the attack of Sir Roger Keyes, British naval hero, on the lack of bold action against Germans in Norwegian waters, suggesting that not only Trondheim could have been captured but that Oslo fjord might have been seized by the Allies.

3. Richard A. Butler, parliamentary foreign secretary, said that restoration of freedom and independence of Norway and Denmark was one of the Allied war aims.

It was generally believed that the Chamberlain government, despite bitter attacks on its conduct of the war, would be able to secure a majority, but some of the Laborites were hopeful of an upset. A vote of non-confidence would almost certainly force Chamberlain's resignation.

(The Conservative party has 374 out of a total of 615 members in the house of commons, but the cabinet also has Liberal National, National Labor and National supporters to make a total of 418 supporters.)

Nazis Claim Allied Cruisers Hit By Bombs.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN—Direct bomb hits on two more Allied cruisers off the northern Norwegian port of Narvik and destruction of a British plane in an air combat were claimed by the German high command today.

The German war communique also stated that Allied positions and marching troops had been bombed "effectively" by the German air force.

"The German air force again attacked enemy naval forces off Narvik," the war bulletin stated.

"Two cruisers were hit by bombs."

(Editor's note: The communique did not specify whether the cruisers claimed to have been bombed were British or French vessels. Both British and French warships are now operating off Narvik.)

"Enemy positions and marching columns were bombed effectively."

"In an air battle east of Narvik, one British pursuit plane was shot down."

"The situation at Narvik is unchanged.

"Comprehensive booty secured around Andalsnes (Norwegian port from which British troops evacuated) included 460 British anti-tank guns with ammunition, 49 field guns including 40 anti-aircraft guns, 60 grenade throwers, 355 machine guns, 5,300 rifles, 4,500,000 rounds of infantry ammunition and a munitions train containing 300 tons of ammunition.

"The last resistance in central and southern Norway now has ended. Near Ginje, parts of a Norwegian infantry regiment surrendered. Large quantities of war materials, arms and explosives were seized.

"On the western front south of Saarlautern, an enemy shock troop attack was repulsed with heavy losses to the attackers."

Allied Victory at Narvik Predicted Soon.

LONDON—(AP)—The admiralty tonight announced that six British naval trawlers had been lost during the Allied armies' withdrawal from the Trondheim area in Norway.

(By International News Service)

STOCKHOLM—Norwegian predictions that the German troops occupying Narvik can hold out only a few days longer were received in Stockholm today.

The Nazi soldiers at the far-north iron ore port are completely cut off from communications and supplies except by air, and Norwegians claim "a British victory at Narvik is but a matter of a few days."

The Germans today were reported to have mined Narvik-fjord from the air to prevent further British troop landings in that region, and these same planes reportedly dropped food to the Nazis via parachute. These supplies, however, would not be sufficient to maintain the troops for more than a day or two.

Karl Hedstroem, correspondent in Norway for the Swedish newspaper Tidningen, reported today that he had visited Mornfjord, 225 miles north of Trondheim, yesterday.

"I found no Germans there," he wrote. "They stopped their northward advance at Majastua south of Mo. At Nordlandet the residents told me that if the Germans try to advance at that point they will definitely be stopped at Bodoe, from whence there is no overland route to Narvik. Sending reinforcements by land to Narvik is considered impossible."

About 400 parents and friends of students at Madison high school attended the school's annual "open house" observance and program last night.

Work completed by students during the past year was displayed in the various class rooms between 7:30 and 9 p. m., followed by a program in the auditorium.

The program featured a concert by the school band, directed by James Weber, instrumental music supervisor in the Madison township schools.

The horse-soldier, or cavalryman, was characteristic of early Asiatic warfare.

Council also authorized the improvement of Poplar street and Sloane avenue, approving the grading and graveling of the streets along with the construction of a sanitary sewer on Overlook avenue, Coleman road, Barnard and Sloane avenues.

Total cost of the projects is estimated at $15,350.

To finance the cost of the improvements, council approved the issuance of $14,700 in notes in anticipation of the collection of assessments to meet the property owners share of the cost. The city's share is figured at $650.

Preliminary legislation was approved for the construction of a sanitary sewer on Park avenue west from Linden road to the south end of Glenbeck lane and a storm drain in the vicinity of McPherson and St. Clair streets. Both projects are to be done by the WPA.

OK'S HIRING OF 2 CITY WORKERS

Council Approves Court Clerk and Seven Department Employees.

City council last night paved the way for employment of two new city workers, one in municipal court and the other in the sanitary sewer department.

Council authorized a $500 appropriation to employ an additional worker to assist in the summer sewer cleaning program. Mayor William J. Locke today appointed Conrad Sheets, 66 Tracy street, to the post.

Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch said his selection of a clerk would not be made until next week. He said that seven applications received for the position would be turned over to the Republican executive committee for recommendations. The positions pay $75 a month.

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, MAY 8, 1940.

Europe's broken peace pacts have become impacts.

A psychologist advises, "Forget yourself"—but not if you're a pedestrian crossing the street.

It is interesting to note that Mexico's Fourth of July fell on the fifth of May—evidencing spread of the Roosevelt influence.

Another bad thing about unemployment—it allows so much time in which to explain Great Britain's mistakes in running the war.

Mansfield Tops Its Fund Goal

NO BETTER example of the right way to carry through a public enterprise is likely to be found than that provided by the Community Chest campaign just concluded.

The fact that both this year and last, the amounts subscribed to the Community Fund exceeded the goal fixed, is fully explained by the thoroughness of organization and careful planning done in advance of the campaign opening.

Choice of capable and enthusiastic leadership, coupled with willing support of that leadership, is essential to the success of any community activity. This has been convincingly demonstrated in Mansfield on a number of occasions in the past and will undoubtedly be the experience in whatever constructive projects are taken up in the future.

It happened that last year Clyde K. Smaltz was selected as general chairman of the Community Chest campaign, and his successful direction of that campaign resulted in drafting him to serve again this year—which he did with the same amazing energy and earnestness he displayed a year ago. The result has been even more satisfactory—with total subscriptions marking a new 10-year high.

But it scarcely needs stating that the extent of community service which has been given by Mr. Smaltz in these two campaigns is more than could be reasonably asked of any one citizen, and that constant thought should be given to developing qualities of intelligent and effective leadership among young men and women of the city, so that they will later be equipped to move naturally into various positions of responsibility, as those who are now older residents were accustomed to do.

Looking back over the record of twenty years of Community Chest campaigns in Mansfield it is gratifying to recall names of the many fine men and women who participated actively in these campaigns, giving liberally of time and effort, as well as money, for the maintenance of charitable, welfare and character-building agencies which continue to mean much in making this a desirable city in which to live.

The spirit of Mansfield is reflected in no finer way than by the leadership, workers and contributors to its Community Chest.

Fire Prevention Is Full-Time Job

DURING this week's special emphasis on fire prevention, information on this subject will come to the attention of thousands of Mansfield people, either through reading, hearing talks, or by means of home fire inspection blanks distributed to school children.

Education in fire prevention has been carried on in an intensive way during the past decade but needless fire losses, in lives and property, are still entirely too high.

When it is considered that more than eight out of every ten fires could have been prevented by proper precautions, and that lethargy and laziness are held responsible for a large percentage of all fires, the requirement for a continuous program of education and emphasis on common dangers is recognized.

And when public thought is being thus directed, it is also a good time to again remind readers that Mansfield's fire-fighting equipment is not adequate to the needs of a city of this size, that a considerable part of the apparatus is obsolete, and that there is increasing requirement for an additional fire station for better protection of the west and southwest sections. It is also well to bear in mind that Mansfield's present water distribution system is not designed to meet the requirements of combating a fire of such proportions as might occur at any time.

It has also been pointed out that substantial savings would be made on fire insurance premiums, through rate reductions, in the event of better protection against losses.

More Attention To Tourist Business

FOURTEEN states now use movies to promote their tourist business. Many others maintain publicity bureaus and publish colorful leaflets of information which are sent on request to any interested persons, however remote. They are also using increasing amounts of newspaper advertising which is read with zest by millions of Americans.

There are still some states that have not made any special effort to call outsiders' attention to their attractions. No doubt they'll be doing it soon, for such advertising has proved profitable for all concerned. In the meanwhile, they gain from the publicity activity of their neighbors. One state, not yet embarked on a tourist campaign, finds it has an income of $52,000,000 derived from travelers passing through on their way to and from other vacation spots. An income of $59,000,000 is expected from the same source this year.

Such facts disclose how numerous and far-reaching are the ramifications of the great all-American vacation industry.

Danger In Excessive Taxes

DANIEL WEBSTER'S warning that "the power to tax is the power to destroy" is looming larger in the minds of thinking citizens.

Several state legislatures have adopted resolutions urging that a limit of 25 per cent be placed on federal income, gift and inheritance taxes. A resolution adopted by the American Taxpayers association includes the provision that congress could lift the limit in case of war.

At present congress may levy and collect up to 70 per cent of incomes of individuals and corporations. Every effort has been made to make people believe that high taxes on "big business" is a good way to "suck the rich."

Industry must pass taxes on to the consumer. When taxes pass beyond reasonable limits, costs rise, employment falls. Excessive taxes on individuals force individual wealth to seek refuge in nonproductive, tax-free, low-interest bearing government securities. If the total income of all those receiving more than $100,000 in 1938 were confiscated by taxation it would pay the cost of the government for less than 15 days! And one of the greatest dangers inherent in high federal taxes is the tendency to undermine states' rights by seizure of income that should belong to the states.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Met a man the other night by the name of Hough. . . . You pronounce it Huff, like tough. . . . His first name was Cass. . . . Sounds familiar, doesn't it? . . . Cass Huff. . . . It did to me. . . . Kept rolling it around on my tongue, trying to remember. . . . Sometimes a name runs around your mind till it runs you crazy. . . . But you can't place it. . . . And then, finally, you do place it.

It had something to do with Kenneth Roberts, who wrote "Arundel" and "Rabble in Arms" and "Northwest Passage." . . . In those books was an earthy, unpredictable character named Cap Huff. . . . Cap was a character. . . . He gave a color of reasonableness and warmth to those bleak, tangled tales that Rogers' rangers travelled so stealthily. We said, "Cass, you any kin to old Cap Huff?"

HE LOOKED surprised. . . . He looked pleased. . . . He said, "It's the same family, or a branch of it. . . . Our branch went west to Michigan. . . . Been there ever since. . . . In transit the name became respelled. . . . But it's the same outfit. . . . I think my great granddaddy broke away from the original family and went out to Michigan."

Just then an acquaintance of his passed us at the newsstand in the New Yorker lobby, where we were standing, and said, "Nice speech today, Cass."

We asked, "You on a speaking tour, Mr. Hough?" . . . He said he was talking about guns. This conjured up visions of the Germans and Scandinavia and anti-aircraft guns. . . . "What kind of guns?" we asked.

"Air guns," he said, "little b. b. guns. . . . That's my business. . . . We make air guns."

Blow me down. I bet I had a dozen when I was a kid. . . . I became so excited I couldn't talk, and when I tried to say, "See this dent in my forehead!" he almost clapped his hand over my mouth and hissed, "Shhhhh, do you want to drive me out of business?"

He said, "I spend half my time making speeches to women's clubs, convincing people there's no harm in air guns. . . . It's against the law to sell them in New York. There are four or five other towns where they are barred. But they aren't dangerous. . . . Not any more."

WELL, there he was, descendant of old Cap Huff, the son of the son of the man who manufactured the first air rifle. . . . And five minutes before he was, to me, merely an unknown young man, one of the seven million floating about New York. . . . That's the way it goes. . . . That's New York. . . . You pass a guy on the street . . . and you never know.

We said, "How does anybody ever begin to manufacture air guns?"

"Our family," said Cass, "made iron windmills. . . . A couple of fellows in the shop had been experimenting with a new fangled gun. . . . One day they brought it in for the old man to see. . . . He went outside with it, and shot it. . . . His eyes nearly popped. . . . He turned around and said, 'Boys, this is a daisy. . . . If that hadn't happened, who knows? I might be selling linoleum today.'"

To Aid Latin-American Relations

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

A NEW little periodical, calling itself The Pan American, edited by Leslie P. Eichel, well known as a former newspaper and newspaper syndicate editor, has made its appearance on the news stands recently.

The magazine's mission is indicated by its name—the promotion of unity among the New World's peoples. The idea is to get them acquainted, both politically and commercially. It's been much talked about of late, but the movement does need a publication, to give this conversation somewhat more permanency than mere verbal chat.

And now the publication's launched. The juncture is very favorable. We Yankees have learned that our Latin neighbors can be developed into extremely useful and profitable ones.

Right after the last World war was too soon. I made the experiment, so I know.

Latin America is a raw material realm: It has to import most of its manufactured supplies. Prior to 1914 it had obtained the bulk of them from Europe, which, however, couldn't continue to provide them during the ensuing conflict. Accordingly, the Latins turned to us.

By the war's end we had a near-monopoly among them—and could have kept it if we'd tried. Unfortunately, few of our industries

A WEATHER PROOF CROP THIS YEAR

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Madame Secretary Perkins is about to lose her ablest assistant secretary, Marshall E. Dimock—another casualty in the long list of executives who have come and gone inside the labor department.

Dimock has done an excellent job as second assistant secretary of labor, but Miss Perkins will not be sorry to see him go. If anything, she has encouraged his departure.

Reason is that Miss Perkins has some rather definite ideas about marriage and divorce. And Dimock is now in the process of getting a divorce from his wife, while simultaneously his former secretary is getting a divorce from her husband.

Dimock's former secretary is Mrs. Warren Jay Vinton, whose husband is chief economist for the U. S. Housing Authority. She filed for a divorce in Reno on April 23, and it is now reported that Dimock and Mrs. Vinton will be married.

So Miss Perkins has given her blessing to the exit of her assistant secretary, who will now return to teaching at the University of Chicago.

Russia Refuses.

ONE of the big questions which Mussolini and Hitler discussed at their famous meeting at the Brenner Pass was a deal by which the Soviet was to enter the Axis.

Hitherto, Communist Russia and Catholic Italy had wasted no love. However, Nazi Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop reported to Mussolini on his trip to Rome that he would have no trouble bringing Russia into the fold. All he had to do, Ribbentrop intimated, was more or less to snap his fingers and Stalin would obey.

Since that time, Ribbentrop may have snapped his fingers, but he has had no luck with Stalin. So far, Russia has not come into the Axis, and there has been no pact whatsoever regarding the Balkans.

In fact, Italy and Russia are just as far apart as ever. It is more than probable that if Mussolini goes into the Balkans, Russia will move immediately to take Rumania and the coast of the Black Sea.

Lewis and Green.

IN a city which thrives on feuds, probably the bitterest enemies today remain labor leaders John L. Lewis and William Green. How bitterly they hate was illustrated when Eugene Casey, head of the local Roosevelt Memorial Library committee, called upon Green to ask for an AFL contribution toward building the library.

Mr. Green immediately asked: "How much did John L. Lewis and the CIO contribute?"

"Mr. Green," replied Casey a little sadly, "Mr. Lewis wouldn't contribute a cent."

Bill Green brightened perceptibly, called his secretary and wrote a check for $500.

"Sorry we can't do more," he said, handing the check to Casey. "It's a very worthy cause."

Bread, Not Books.

RANKING very close to Bill Green in the bitter eyes of John L. Lewis, however, is Franklin D. Roosevelt. This also was illustrated by the aforementioned Eugene Casey when he called earlier on Lewis, to ask him for funds to build the Hyde Park library.

Mr. Lewis listened graciously, then growled: "What this country needs is not libraries but BREAD."

Casey retorted: "Mr. Lewis, if it had not been for libraries, American labor would not have the forthright, dynamic, fearless leader who has done more for labor than anyone else."

"Study your own background," Casey continued. "You were just a poor miner's boy. Where would you be today if it had not been for free books, free education and free libraries?"

Mr. Lewis softened somewhat, but still refused to contribute to the Roosevelt Memorial Library.

Listen, World!

That Blah Feeling.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

HERE are questions every human being asks at some time: "Why do I get fed up on everything, every now and then?" a woman writes me. "Do you know what I mean, Elsie Robinson—that blah mood, as if everything was unreal; nothing mattered?"

"I tell myself it should matter. I see scores of things in which I should be interested. But while that mood is on, I can't get excited about anything. I can't even feel love. It is as if I were walking around in a dream. Do other people get that way? If they do, what's the reason? And is there a cure?"

Yes, other people get that way. All of us get that way. And the reason isn't hard to find. It's not in the least remarkable that we should have "blah moods" when we "can't feel anything—not even love." The miracle is that we have any other moods, that we are able to live so richly in our emotions.

For man, like all other animals, is naturally a blah creature. The savage in the jungle has his moments of ecstasy, rage, excitement and curiosity, but for the most part he's as torpid as a turnip. His body continues to function but his mind and feelings loaf on the job.

And this is both natural and necessary. Thinking and feeling are a comparatively new job for the human animal. He has had walking legs and striking fists and a hungry stomach for a very long time, but he has had thoughts, emotions and self-consciousness for a comparatively short time. And they are not an unmitigated blessing.

Thinking and feeling are a tiresome, often a painful business. The body rebels against that business. It wants to do the things that are easy to do—things that can be done without planning, without making decisions. It wants to lie in the sun, and eat, and sleep, and fight, and make love. All of these things can be done with little thought or feeling, as an animal does them. And we humans are still nine-tenths brute.

Why do you have blah moods? That's why.

Because the mental side of you, still so new at its job, goes on a strike. Temporarily you revert to your stupid, happy, lazy jungle self.

But is there no cure for that? Probably not, within the next million or so years.

And why should there be a cure?

Why this frantic desire to "think and feel all the time"— this constant, hysterical search for a thrill?

"That's because we want to live in high! We refuse to be dead ones. We moderns are live wires."

Piffle. We moderns are nothing of the sort. We merely have the nervous jitters; and most of our so-called thoughts and feelings are as senseless and aimless as a monkey's chatter.

Our trouble is not that we can't use our brains all the time, but that we seldom use them ANY OF THE TIME!

Don't rebel because there are times when you can't think or feel. That is natural. It is the penalty of being that new creature, a human being.

Ask, rather, that you may make good use of the times when you can think and can feel. When those times come—try to think like a man; try to feel like a man.

If you'll think one REAL Grade A human thought a day, register one REAL Grade A human feeling, you can safely park your brain on a bush for the rest of the time.

Maytime

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY DAUGHTER was born in May, and I often think she is an epitome of the month. Thirteen is a springy age, both in mind and body. Adolescence is alternate sunshine and shower—one day the warmth and confidence of summer, the next a return to blustering roiling March or tear-wet April.

She forgets that she is tall and weighs a hundred pounds. With childish abandon she romps and plays, inventing games to fit her brothers' lesser years. Or, in a less worthy mood, indulges in quarrels that are no credit to her parents' effort at training. These all pass by, like shadows across the grass. Our children fight with and for each other. Let one of the younger members of the family fall, step on a rusty nail or pound his thumb and older sister is nurse and comforter.

When I am ill she treats me much the same. A tray appears by my bed with a tasty meal. A cup of cold water right from the spring is quietly tendered. The blinds are pulled and I am urged to sleep.

Her world is colored with caprice, tinged with romance. She dreams of knights in armor. She becomes ecstatic over the first sprays of bloom, a quaint old fashioned frock, a new dance step, or a wobbly calf. She goes unhesitatingly from admiring a great painting or listening to a great song, to change the baby.

Among her troop of God Scouts, her pigtailed fly—a symbol of independence and inherited luck of curd. She would like curls, "but a girl can't have everything." Bi-cycling this summer along country roads with her Scout companions, she will treadle her way into wider views and lasting friendships with girls her own age.

May is such a beautiful month—so unaware of itself. Such potentialities, so much burgeoning life, such aching, unspoiled loveliness! May passes so swiftly into the heat and maturity of June. Every May seems lovelier than the last, especially to him whose own life approaches autumn. We walk into the woods, my young daughter and I, for a delightful comradely ramble through the hills—and I, at least, know the poignancy of the season.

Victory for Hatch Clean Politics Bill Predicted

REVIVAL OF ISSUE VOTED IN CONGRESS

Judiciary Committee Chairman Charges Hitlerian Methods Provided by Measure.

WASHINGTON—A victory for the Hatch clean politics bill in the house judiciary committee was predicted today by its backers, despite the contention of Chairman Summers (D., Tex.) that the measure foreshadowed Hitlerian methods.

Summers took the house floor late yesterday to labor the legislation as "infamous" and an instrument for concentrating undue power in the hands of "a temporary God Almighty up here in Washington."

The 65-year-old Texan opened up after the judiciary committee, reversing a previous decision to shelve the bill, voted 14 to 11 to revive it as a live committee issue. The legislation would bar political activities by state employees paid in part by federal funds.

Summers, who did not vote on reconsidering the measure, called it an assumption of power "that ought to be left in the states."

His criticism immediately drew counterfire from Rep. Hill (D., Wash.)

"He talks about dictatorship," Hill said heatedly. "Yet he says you cannot consider this bill!"

"Who is this gentleman who lectured us this afternoon? He comes from a state where in 1936 only 26 per cent of the adult voters voted!"

The floor dispute notwithstanding, backers of the bill expressed belief that favorable committee action was in the offing. The committee meets again tomorrow.

However, a few committee members were talking about sending the bill back to a subcommittee for rewriting. Rep. Dempsey (D., N. M.), house sponsor of the measure, said that would kill it, because the session of congress is nearing its close.

DEMAND MADE FOR BIG NAVY

Baruch and Gerard Join Cry For Sea Defense; Fleet Held Near Hawaii.

(Continued From Page 1) ertheless meant that the fighting force would continue operating from its nearest major base to the Netherlands East Indies, where the United States recently called for a "hands off" policy by Japan and other nations.

National defense appraisals came late yesterday from Bernard Baruch and James W. Gerard, two men high in America's world war councils.

Baruch, New York financier who headed the war industries board in 1917-18, wrote a senate committee studying an army appropriations bill that the United States was "inadequately prepared even for defense."

Calling the western hemisphere the richest prize in the world, he declared:

"Germany, Italy, Russia and Japan, with their well trained armies would not hesitate for one minute, if they should win, to find some reason for coming here."

Gerard, ambassador to Germany prior to United States' entry in the World War, likewise was apprehensive for the hemisphere. A victorious Germany, he said, would direct its efforts toward southern Brazil, which had a large German population.

"Encroachments in Latin America" by the Reich, he said would constitute a "great danger to the United States." Gerard conferred with President Roosevelt yesterday.

Capitol hill heard stout reaffirmation of navy faith in the fighting ability of a fleet, despite the recent series of German claims that warplanes had worsted sea power.

Secretary Edison, testifying on a bill to increase the fleet by 11 per cent, said he and experts believed the German air arm incapable of destroying or even "seriously damaging" Britain's fleet.

Rear Admiral Clark H. Woodward, commandant of the third naval district, declared in a speech at New York that "no battleship has yet been sunk by an airplane." He did not mention Germany's week-end claim that a bomb had sunk a British battleship.

600 PAY LAST RESPECTS TO CHAMBERLAIN AT RITES TODAY

More than 600 friends, relatives and business associates paid final respects today to Frederick A. Chamberlain, Ohio Public Service company executive.

At funeral services this morning at Jones Memorial, those in attendance filled the funeral home and many were seated on the lawn outside. The large attendance and a mass of floral tributes attested to respect and affection which Mr. Chamberlain commanded.

This thought was touched upon by Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of First Presbyterian church, conducting the service for the vice president and general manager of the utility company who died unexpectedly Sunday.

"The real test of a man's character and personality," Rev. Roller said, "is the attitude toward him among those who work with him, and I have found that Mr. Chamberlain was loved and respected by every employee who came under his supervision."

He said that Mr. Chamberlain had a philosophy in life which would be good for all to follow. "In making decisions affecting others it was always his policy to first put himself in the position of those who would be affected by that decision," he explained.

Mrs. Joy A. Herbert, wife of an Ohio Public Service official and close friend of the Chamberlain family, gave a program of harp music before the services and at the close. She chose for her program "Abide With Me," "Almighty Lord," "To a Wild Rose," "Liebestraum" and "Lead Kindly Light," and after the services she played Dvorak's Largo and Mendelssohn's "Consolation."

There were officials from every property of the Ohio Public Service in Ohio and from affiliated companies in other states. Among them were F. J. Petura and R. Carbutt, of the Electric Advisors, Inc., New York City; B. C. Adams, brother of Mrs. Chamberlain, and vice president of the Gas Service company of Kansas City, Mo.; C. L. Proctor and J. F. O'Connor of the Toledo Edison company, Toledo; H. Dykeman, also of the Toledo company, and T. O. Kennedy, vice president and general manager of the Ohio Public Service company, Cleveland.

Pallbearers were friends and business associates in the company. They were J. A. Herbert, I. L. Bronson, H. D. Crawford, R. D. Iden, M. A. Giles and Walter Goodenough.

The body was shipped to Madison, Wis., birth place of Mr. Chamberlain, where interment will be made tomorrow. In the funeral party were Mrs. Chamberlain, Miss Carolyn Chamberlain, Mr. Adams, and C. L. Dunn, general sales manager of the O. P. S. of Cleveland, and Mrs. Dunn.

PUTS 'TEETH' IN CITY'S BUILDING PERMIT ORDERS

Council Sets Up $50 Penalty As It Acts Favorably On Other Regulations.

City council last night acted favorably on three items of legislation, dealing with the building industry in Mansfield.

Aimed at halting the practice of starting new construction before first obtaining a building permit, council amended the city's 30 year-old building ordinance by putting "teeth" in the law.

Heretofore unprovided, a maximum penalty of $50 was set up for failure to comply with provisions of the ordinance.

To protect the city's sanitary sewers from rubbish entering the during construction of new buildings, another measure provides that any connection to the sewers shall not be made without first installing a screen in the line.

Councilman George C. Kyle said the legislation was aimed at the construction of new buildings where he claimed sticks and gravel were sometimes washed in to the sewers.

To provide sewer service for residences outside the sanitary sewer districts, council also approved a measure granting permission to tap outlet sewers extending beyond the sewer districts.

The ordinance sets up a $30 tap fee for a minimum 60-foot frontage.

In addition, council also authorized an appropriation of $1,200 to be taken from the water, sewer and garbage department funds for the purchase of a new address plate making machine for the office.

Another $6,000 was appropriated from the waterworks surplus to replenish funds depleted because of extensive repairs caused by breads in water mains during the winter.

STUDY AIRPORT PARK PROPOSAL

Councilman Told State Would Build Recreation Spot If It Can Obtain Deed.

Improvement of the municipal airport by construction of a roadside park by the state highway department on the route 13 frontage hinged today on the legal right of the city to deed part of the property to the state for that purpose.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward was asked last night by Council President Howard G. Miller to advise council concerning its legal right to turn over part of the land for the improvement.

Ward was asked to rule on the matter after council received a communication from Mayor William J. Locke informing the legislators that the highway department was considering the location for a roadside park providing they were deeded a plat 200 feet deep with 800-foot frontage on route 13.

The mayor's communication pointed out that the state proposed to develop the land for park purposes only and that the project would include establishment of a suitable parking space.

Proposal for the location of the park was suggested some time ago by the Richland county chapter of the National Aeronautics association and is included in a proposed $40,000 NYA project for improvement of the airfield.

BOARD ASKS AID ON BRIDGE JOB

Commissioners Want City to Pay Part of Cost of New Main Street Span.

Council's street and finance committees had before them today a proposal requesting financial aid in the re-construction of the North Main street bridge over Touby's run.

The proposal submitted to council last night by county commissioners, was referred to committees investigation by President Howard G. Miller.

It asks that council review an offer made by the state highway department to Mayor William J. Locke in which the state proposed to assume one-third of the cost providing the city and county would meet the balance.

Total cost of a new structure to replace the bridge, just north of the Erie railroad, which was partially washed out about a year ago has been estimated by County Engineer Howard C. Sword at $18,000.

The letter pointed out that the commissioners were aware of the provisions of the state statutes which require them to keep bridges on state and county roads in repair, but cited the building of the Bowman street bridge for which they said the county had no legal responsibility. The county shared in the cost of that structure.

The commissioners added that the county had also earmarked $40,000 toward the construction of

It was further pointed out that there was little possibility for construction of the North Main street bridge unless financial aid was obtained from the city as well as from the highway department.

WAR THREATS KEEP HOLLAND IN SUSPENSE

Intense Military Precaution Taken by Netherlands to Meet Any Situation.

customary Netherlands weather broadcasts would be omitted for the present "due to conditions which are known to you." The broadcasting of weather reports has been discontinued in belligerent countries since the start of the war.)
Meanwhile civilian railway travel throughout the Netherlands was sharply curtailed to facilitate the movements of thousands of soldiers and sailors called back to the colors by a sweeping order cancelling all leaves.
Orders also were issued barring ships from inland waterways and military guards were placed around all public buildings in Amsterdam and The Hague.
The Netherlands has approximately 400,000 men under arms, although about 40,000 of that number have been absent from their posts since April 27 under a rotating system of leaves.
Information from Belgium, the Netherlands' southern neighbor, indicated that no cancellation of army leaves was contemplated there for the present.

Nazis Deny March on Holland Planned.

(By International News Service)
BERLIN—The German government today formally denied the truth of reports that Nazi columns are advancing on the Netherlands or that this country has demanded permission to march troops through Hungary.
Nazi officials took the unusual course of summoning foreign correspondents to the Wilhelmstrasse where an official statement was read ascribing the Holland invasion rumors to propagandists of the British ministry of information.

All German newspapers devoted most of their front pages to the denial, asserting that the United States had "again been made a victim of the British ministry of information," with the alleged object of diverting world attention from German exposure of "Anglo-French aggression plans."
"As an example, there is a New York report about German armies moving on Holland from Bremen and Dusseldorf."
"This report has been attributed to a so-called 'highly reliable source' which actually is none other, as Germany has been able to ascertain, than the British ministry of information."

(Editor's note: The report that Germany has asked permission to send armed forces through Hungary was carried by the official Hungarian news agency from Budapest.)

Whatever may be at the bottom of the new crisis, the German press kept up its drumfire of charges that Britain and France plan some aggression in the Mediterranean, or have purposely stirred up a tempest in that area to shield intended movements elsewhere.

Thoroughgoing inquiries in Berlin failed to uncover any concrete evidence of the plans or intentions of either belligerent.

It was emphasized, however, that Germany is amply prepared for whatever dangers its borders may be exposed to and will act with "paralyzing speed" in reprisal against any attack.

Of this the Balkan countries are particularly aware, it was said, with the result that the capitals of all those countries are exercising greatest caution in order not to precipitate themselves in fatal encounters or entanglements.

Fund Workers Happy as Drive Goes Over

These smiles were not for the cameraman but for the successful ending of Mansfield's 21st annual Community Fund campaign. The drive ended yesterday with $61,465 pledged, $3,965 more than the goal. In the front row, left to right, are Clyde K. Smaltz, general chairman of the drive who has piloted it to victory for two successive years; George Stephens, head of the Big Gifts division; and Harold W. Arlin, major of the industrial division, which turned in $38,381 of the total. Standing at the back are O. C. McCormick, major of the construction division, Mrs. Tom Ford, head of the organizations division, both of whom worked tirelessly in the drive, and Philip Ober, a former president of the Community Fund.

UNITED PRESS WRITER KILLED

Webb Miller Blackout Victim; Body Discovered Along Railroad Track.

lice said they believed Miller planned to change trains at Clapham Junction and stepped off the coach thinking he was near the platform.
A hard blow on the right side of the head, incurred when he stepped from the speeding train, apparently caused instant death. An engineer on the first daylight train saw the body, and railroad police took it to Battersea mortuary.
Miller is survived by his wife Marie and son Kenneth, 18, both of whom are in the United States.
The famous reporter died at the height of his career. His last story describing the House of Commons debate was written yesterday and he was in good spirits when he left the United Press office at 7 p. m. He had telephoned the office around 9 p. m. saying he was going to the country to get a good night's sleep.
Miller's last war front assignment was in Finland where he covered the Russo-Finnish fighting around Lake Ladoga. Before the war broke out in Finland he was with the British expeditionary forces in France.
Although he was best known for his personal reportorial exploits, which began with his assignment to the Mexican border in 1916 and included practically every major international conflict from then until the present war, Miller was also a top ranking news executive. He was the general European manager of the United Press, with headquarters here, but was always prepared to leave his desk for a front-line assignment.
Miller was born and attended school in Dowagiac, Mich.

spreading false reports to provoke incidents and spread war.
If Messagero declared reports of strong Italian troop reinforcements on the Yugoslav frontier were false.
Diplomatic observers said their investigations also failed to disclose any unusual massing of Italian troops there.

FRIENDSHIP

ROME —(INS)—Italy has given Yugoslavia "tranquilizing assurances" of Italian friendship, it was learned on the highest diplomatic authority today by International News Service.
The occasion of Italian reassurances to Belgrade was the recent period of unrest in Yugoslavia, it was learned. Italy then affirmed that Italo-Yugoslavian relations were, and would be governed, by the 10-year-old pact of friendship between the two nations.

DEFEND GREECE

ISTANBUL —(INS)—Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu has informed the Greek government that the Turkish army is ready to defend Greece against any aggression, it was understood today.

TROOP PASSAGE

BUDAPEST —(INS)—Germany has requested permission from the Hungarian government for Reich troops to move through the country, the Hungarian news agency said today.
Editor's Note: An exchange telegram (British) news agency dispatch from Budapest said it was officially denied that Germany requested the right to send troops across Hungary.)
The agency said that Bulgaria flatly turned down a British request for permission to send troops across her territory in the event Europe's war spreads to the southeast. In addition Bulgaria was said to have rejected British offers of trade deals, despite proffered long-term credits from London.

THEATERS

Fantasy In Colors.

The little boy and little girl who went searching for the blue bird of happiness and found in a most unexpected place, inspired the great poet Maurice Maeterlinck to write a play on "The Blue Bird." Darryl Zanuck made it into a picture with Shirley Temple as the little girl who could be so very good and so very bad. The film has been done in technicolor in a manner to appeal to both children and adults. It is a Madison attraction on a double feature bill.

Half Dozen Dramas.

The film story which critics described as a "stiff dose of realism" brings Carole Lombard to the screen in a serious drama. Supporting her are Brian Aherne and Anne Shirley. "Vigil in the Night" is the inside drama of the nursing profession and revolves around two sisters, one a seasoned graduate, and the other a student nurse. There are a half dozen dramas wrapped up in the plot. The picture is current at the Ohio.

"Balalaika" at Ritz.

The glamorous days of old Russia in the days of the last czar provides the theme of "Balalaika," the musical romance which brings Nelson Eddy and Ilona Massey to the Ritz today and tomorrow. A Cossack guard and a cafe singer find their way to happiness through the dark days of the revolution. The Jones family in "Young As You Feel" is the second feature.

"Five Little Peppers."

The first picture based on the "Five Little Peppers and How They Grew" was so popular that a second film has been made on this courageous family. It is "Five Little Peppers at Home" and has the same cast as the first film. It is a Park theater attraction for Thursday. With it is George O'Brien in "The Border Patrolman," an outdoor drama.

Famous Violinist.

An attractive movie cast, plus the talent of Jascha Heifetz, world famous violinist, is found in "They Shall Have Music" at the Majestic. Joel McCrea and Andrea Leeds find romance in a home-spun story and to the well known Heifetz music. The always fascinating mystery thriller "The Cat and the Canary," with Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard, is also shown.

WRITER TELLS ABOUT SINKING OF DESTROYER

Eye-Witness Story of Bombing Raid on Departing Allied Troops Related.

alongside the weary, unshaven soldiers the first bomb from nine attacking German planes dropped. Then three of the planes singled us out for attack and dropped, like plummets, from the sky. The anti-aircraft guns opened up, creating an infernal din, filling the sky with grey puffs from exploding shells.
Then six planes dropped a curtain of bombs alongside the convoy without damage. Six large bombs fell 300 yards from my ship. They flew away but two more planes roared out of the sun and dropped a salvo of bombs, one of which struck the destroyer Bison. The French gunners stuck to their anti-aircraft guns, downing one of the attackers.
Suddenly there was a terrific explosion and the Bison was lost from view behind an enormous pall of smoke. Then I saw other destroyers rush to her assistance. As we drew farther away I heard more loud explosions.
Then we were followed by a German flying boat which never let us out of sight. Soon, additional German planes flew up, attacked with a barrage of bombs laid horizontally and then bombed the destroyers. One Junkers JU-87 ripped down from the sky at the Afridi and let loose a flood of bombs. A tremendous explosion told us the Afridi had been hit. She heeled to the starboard, but plunged through the waters with undiminished speed. Then she curled, smoke pouring forth from amidships, and dropped out of the convoy. Other destroyers rushed to her assistance while a hail of bombs fell around the vessels composing the convoy.
It was a terrifying sight, with the blazing Afridi the center, the German planes raining death and all ships blazing away with anti-aircraft and machine gun fire.
The troops on my ship huddled in the corridors and below deck to escape flying shrapnel and bomb splinters.
Later, there was a submarine scare and the destroyers dropped depth charges.

COUNCIL BUSY WITH BIG LIST OF MINOR ITEMS

Legislation Acted Upon In Several Requests; Petitions Sent to Committees.

City council, in a lengthy session last night, disposed of a large amount of legislation, practically all of which had been tentatively approved earlier. Council also disposed of numerous claims and petitions by referring them to various committees.

A special committee including Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton, C. N. Shultz, George C. Kyle and Harry Emmons was named by President Howard G. Miller to consider a request submitted by street and water department employees for pay for time off the job when disabled.

The petitions were signed by 28 workers in the municipal street department and 17, including office employees, of the water department.

Among the petitions referred to the sewer committee was a communication from the board of education for the construction of a 600-foot storm sewer at the new Johnny Appleseed Junior high school.

John H. Elsaman, clerk of the board, wrote council that the board had provided a temporary ditch through the graded area but warned that damage would result to school and adjacent property unless sewer drains were provided.

The committee also was handed petitions from property owners on Newman street and an alley on the east side of Mendota street requesting the construction of sanitary sewers to serve their properties.

George C. Kyle, committee chairman, requested legislation drawn to authorize construction of sanitary sewers on Rembrandt street and Lawview avenue, when petitions from property owners on those streets were read.

Seek Water Line.

Property owners on Rembrandt also submitted a petition for construction of a water line. The request was given to the water committee.

Monroe street residents asked council to change the name of the street to Auburn avenue. It was referred to the street committee.

Three requests, the naming of two allies and a change of street name, made earlier this year were authorized by council.

Forest street was changed to Forest avenue and an alley south of Granite street was named East Blancher street. Another alley south of West Fourth street between Rowland avenue and Western avenue was named Crowell drive.

The claims committee received a claim from Jud Theaker, 100 Lida street, for $3.29 for damages to his car which was involved in a collision with a police department cruiser. Another was received from E. F. Lafferty, 129 Park avenue east for $20.71 for two new tires he claims were damaged because of a protruding sewer pipe on Elm street.

PLAN SURVEY OF COLORED SOCIAL AND CIVIC LIFE

Ashland College Students to Study Status, Map Program For Development.

A survey of Mansfield's colored population to determine the status of social, civic and industrial life in the community will be launched within the next few weeks by the sociology department of Ashland college.

Announcement of the proposed study was made by Edward Grace, president of the recently organized Mansfield Negro Civic association at a meeting of the group.

Backed by city officials and the Chamber of Commerce, the survey will be conducted among Mansfield colored population by sociology students under the direction of Dr. E. E. Jacobs, former president of the college and now head of the sociology department.

Planned as a summer project for the students, it is being made at the request of the association which has taken up the study of general living conditions of the race in the city.

The survey, similar in some respects to the recently completed government census but broader in scope, will be a canvass of every colored family in Mansfield. Only answers to various questions will be tallied and no names will be listed, Grace told the organization.

Mayor Pledges Support.

The meeting was attended by Mayor William J. Locke who pledged the city's support in assisting the college group to complete the comprehensive study.

The survey deals with such questions as a population count of colored persons, their living conditions, vital statistics, industry and employment, delinquency, recreation, schooling, colored community organizations, churches and social agencies.

A supplemental tabulation and study of unemployed colored youth between the ages of 16 and 24 years will also be made in connection with the report, Grace said.

The study is being conducted to disclose colored Mansfielders' status and is to be used in the development of a program to meet their needs members of the association were told.

San Bernardino County, California, is the largest county in the country. Its area is 20,175 miles.

The name Cathay by which China was formerly known comes from the word Khitai, a reference to the ancient kingdom of the Khitan Tartars.

Six Students From Area Listed for O. S. U. Activities

Three students from this vicinity in the college of engineering at Ohio State university were among those named to the winter quarter honor roll this week, while three others were named as participants in other campus activities.

Those on the honor roll, with cumulative averages of three points or better out of a possible four up to the end of the winter quarter, are Harold Kohler of Mansfield, Woodrow Crissinger of Galion, and Norman Bradstock of Bucyrus.

Three other Mansfield students were among those named in other campus activities. George Fox was promoted to lance corporal in the field artillery brigade of the Reserve Officers' Training corps; Dale Bechtel, violinist, participated recently in a music recital on the campus, and Betty Wolff was chosen for a part in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," to be staged soon by the Browning Dramatic society.

SET TRIAL DAYS FOR WILL CASES

Common Pleas Court Attaches Announce Assignments For Next Week.

Three cases, including two actions to set aside wills and a $10,000 damage suit for personal injuries, are scheduled for the first day of the April term petit jury session next Monday.

Five other cases are on the calendar for trial during the week, but it is probable that some of them will be continued or dismissed, court attaches said.

One of the first cases on the docket seeks to set aside the will of the late Mary Y. Phelps and the other involves the will of Mike Sterro, deceased. Plaintiffs in the first action are Mat-the L. Castor and others who filed the suit against Paul Walker and others, named in the will.

The other suit was filed by John Sferro and others against Lucy Siciliano, the executrix.

In the damage suit, Luddia Smith, Mansfield, asks $10,000 for injuries she received in a traffic accident last Nov. 14 on route 42 south of Mansfield. She brought the action against R. Roe Bell, Mansfield, driver of one of the cars involved in the crash.

The jury has no criminal cases on its docket because all of the persons who were indicted by the first grand jury in the April term pleaded guilty and were sentenced.

MEMPHIS MUM

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(AP)—Police figure betting on baseball games won't flourish so much this season if idlers can't know the scores.

The order went out that no telephone wires for ticker service would be allowed in places of amusement such as pool halls, drug stores and the like.

FAILS AGAIN

Lorain Council Unable to Fill Missing Man's Post.

The post of Harvey Irish, Republican councilman at Lorain, who disappeared after his election last November and was last heard from in Mansfield, was still vacant today after attempts to replace him were halted for the fourth time last night.

Needing six affirmative votes to declare the post vacant and name a successor, a five-man Republican bloc in council failed again to get a new councilman named when two Democrats voted "no" and two others were excused before the motion was introduced.

Irish never filled the office to which he was elected, disappearing shortly after election. His wife later received a communication from him at Mansfield, telling her he did not intend to return to Lorain.

Republican members contend Democrats blocked an appointment to the vacancy because of disagreement over the proposed purchase of a piece of property by the city.

"Metaphor," a new phosphatic fertilizer produced by the TVA, is being tried out this spring on test-demonstration farms in 31 New York state counties.

PAYS $10 FINE

BUCYRUS—Charged with careless and reckless driving, George A. Karl of New Washington was fined $10 and costs in the court of Justice O. K. Bender, Monday.

Karl was arrested by State Highway Patrolman W. C. Corder on state route 4, Saturday night. He was released upon payment of his fine.
